GENTAY LTD Expands with the EIKON Disposable IS Certified Gas Alarm

LONDON, 9 July 2010 - Gentay Ltd is pleased to announce the expansion of its offerings to its growing list of customers in the Maritime Industry and beyond. With the successful launch of its revolutionary iCam501 Intrinsically Safe Digital Camera with flash, Gentay has now expanded to provide more innovative products focused on the safe operations within the industry, complying with regulatory and statutory requirements.

In addition to the iCam501, Gentay now offer a wider range of Intrinsically Safe products including the unique Eikon – Intrinsically Safe Gas Alarm. This well designed hand held alarm is one of the first and only products of its kind to feature a fully certified unit valid for 2 years constant use from initial activation without the need for calibration. The unit has been designed to be both cost effective and disposable.

Speaking about this revolutionary unique innovation, Mr Daniel Merrens, Director of Sales and Marketing said:

“One of the challenges that companies are faced with in the Maritime Industry is the regulatory requirement to adhere to manufactures recommendations for maintenance and service that includes calibration of Gas Alarms and Detectors. In practise this means that companies need to monitor and coordinate the calibration of Gas Alarms irrespective of the operational practicalities of a working vessel. With the release of the Eikon – Disposable IS Gas Alarm, this challenge has now been overcome.”

In support of the multitude of new products offered by Gentay Ltd, Gentay have re-released their website with full and comprehensive information. Gentay continues to research and identify new innovative products and services that meet the requirements of the Oil & Gas, and Maritime Industry.
